Global temperature change (1850-2020)

The banner shows 170 vertical coloured bars, showing the progressive heating of our planet in a single, striking image. They show clearly and vividly how global average temperatures have risen over nearly two centuries.

Each stripe represents the average temperature for a single year, relative to the average temperature over the period as a whole. Shades of blue indicate cooler-than-average years, while red shows years that were hotter than average.

The stark band of deep red stripes on the right-hand side of the graphic shows the rapid heating of our planet in recent decades.

Join us at St James's for A Triumph of Delights a festival of learning arts, science, music and prayer on Sun 31st Oct, the eve of COP26. This will be followed by an overnight vigil in solidarity with those impacted by climate change and all those whose decisions in Glasgow will determine all our futures.
